Know where to get tested in and around the Colville Reservation

If you have symptoms of COVID-19, or if you have questions about symptoms you may be experiencing, it is important to know where you can be tested for the virus.

Equally if you have been in close contact with someone who has tested positive for COVID-19, or who is presumed positive, the Colville Tribal Emergency Operations Center encourages you to contact your provider.

The CDC defines close contact as being in less than 6 feet from someone for a prolonged period of as little as 10 minutes.

Before you are tested, be sure to call ahead before visiting your doctor.

If you are short of breath or have chest pain, you need to immediately call 911.

If you call your provider...DO NOT go to the clinic without calling ahead, or other places you could expose others to the virus. Tell them you are experiencing symptoms or are unsure if you should be tested.

On the Colville Indian Reservation all clinics are testing daily.

For emergencies, call 9-1-1.
